Grégoire Polet
Doctor of Contemporary Literature, born in 1979, his first novel,
Madrid ne dort pas, attracted a lot of attention and won him the Prix Jean Muno 2005 which rewards a first work.

The narrator, a highly gifted artist, living alone with his young daughter, finds it difficult to make ends meet. He is however a good copyist, and this talent attracts the attention of art traffickers who force him to accept a not very honest business deal.
