Elisa Brune

A commercial engineer and Doctor in environmental sciences, Elisa Brune does not however confine herself solely to the universe of reason. Between scientific popularisation and literary creativity, she has steadily made her extraordinary way and is universally acclaimed by both press and public.

Edgar Gunzig

Edgar Gunzig is a physicist, an emeritus professor at the Université Libre in Brussels and a writer in his spare time.

This book tells the story of an encounter between a science journalist – Hélène – and a famous physicist – Edgard – who suggests that she write a book about the popularisation of science. Very soon, the original project opens up new perspectives and Hélène learns of her collaborator's incredible story: a child in hiding during the war, his father disappears, taken to the camps. He finds himself with a mother who is a fervent communist on the other side of the 'Iron Curtain'; more precisely, in Poland. This book is a wonderful illustration of how the little and the big stories of our world become intertwined somewhere between theories of the universe and personal journeys.
